She's got the looks, the walk and the drive. But she's a black model in a world where white women represent the standard of beauty. Agencies rarely hire black models. And when they do, they want them to look "like white girls dipped in chocolate." The Colour of Beauty is a shocking short documentary that examines racism in the fashion industry. Is a black model less attractive to designers, casting directors and consumers?

The Colour of Beauty by Elizabeth St. Philip - NFB

This is the beauty of colour, it surrounds us in our everyday life. It is something we experience every day, and it has a subconscious effect on how we live our day-to-day lives. It is a creative reflection of who we are and it was one of the very first things you and I needed to learn about as we travelled through our early childhood years.

The lack of options for women of colour is what caused Florence Adepoju to create her own makeup company, MDM Flow, in 2015. While working on a major beauty brand's makeup counter she found there were limited options for dark-skinned women like herself. In response, she started creating her own makeup in a home-made lab at the bottom of her ...
